SUMMER FOOD SERVICE WEEK
June 5-11, 2005

By the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States of America

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS for over two months every year, schools close their doors for summer vacation. As a result, millions of children who depend on school meals to meet a substantial amount of their daily nutrient needs do not have the opportunity to participate in the school nutrition programs. This lack of access to basic nutrition is most pronounced among the Nation's poorest children, who frequently have no alternative to school meals.

WHEREAS to remedy this situation, Congress established the Summer Food Service Program to ensure that children can continue to receive nutritious midday meals at school playgrounds, parks, camps and other sites where they traditionally gather when they are on summer vacation. Moreover, Congress specifically targeted the administration of this program to sites located in poor areas, defined as areas where at least 50 percent of the children are eligible for free or reduced price school meals.

WHEREAS unfortunately, far too few children take advantage of this vital program. Despite being targeted to poor areas, the program serves fewer than 15 percent of the children who receive free and reduced price meals during the school year. To address this situation, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has been actively working to increase the number of eligible schools, community and faith-based organizations, and other sponsors who offer the program to their communities. These efforts include making significant reductions in the paperwork associated with administering the program through the Simplified Summer Food Program and streamlining the school meal programs with summer meals by way of the Seamless Summer Option of the National School Lunch Program and School Breakfast Program.

WHEREAS as part of this initiative, the Department has designated the week of June 5-11, 2005, as Summer Food Service Week and is issuing a proclamation formally observing this event. The purpose of this observation is two-fold. First, the Department wishes to recognize the important efforts of those organizations already sponsoring summer meal programs. Second, the Department wishes to heighten public awareness of the benefits of summer meals for poor communities and to encourage additional eligible sponsors to participate.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, MIKE JOHANNIS, Secretary of Agriculture, do hereby proclaim June 5-11, 2005, as Summer Food Service Week. I call upon communities to recognize the important achievements of schools and organizations that sponsor summer meal programs and to ensure that children and their parents are aware of this benefit. I also strongly urge eligible schools and organizations that are not participating to make this vital component of our nutrition safety net available in their communities.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this 8th day of April in the year two thousand and five, and the two hundred and twenty-ninth year of the Independence of the United States of America.
